Hormones

Pituitary hormones have been used for many years clinically to determine a myriad of human conditions including fertility, ovulation, growth defects, and thyroid function among others. Scripps Laboratories has been a primary manufacturer of a complete line of pituitary hormones for over two decades. Several purity levels are available. In addition, Scripps manufactures a recombinant form of human Prolactin, which has proven advantages and should be considered for the development of new assays or reformulations of existing assays. Please contact a Scripps sales representative for specifications, pricing, or to obtain samples.
